LIBERATION OF SEOUL COMPLETED

North Korean Army facing annihilation

London, September 28. The Red North Korean Army was written-off officially by the Allied command today as an organized fighting force. But it still carried dihard wallops that may be used in pocket combat before the Communists are wiped out in South Korea or their remnants can escape across the 38th Parallel.

Lieutenant General Walton T. Walker, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, made the appraisal as the Allied armoured fist tightened on Seoul's remaining few Red defenders and resistance mainly evaporated in South Korea.

Nationalists detaining British ship

Taipei, September 28. Naval sources here disputed the claim of the steamer, Northern Glow, held by the Nationalists, to be under British registry.

B-26 CRASHES IN JAPAN

Tokyo, September 28. One crew member and three Japanese were killed and one Japanese was injured when a B-26 Invader bomber crashed into Japanese houses near an airbase in Southern Japan yesterday.

HEAVY RAINFALL

A steady downpour of rain starting about 8 p.m. yesterday and lasting for several hours raised the water level in the Colony's various reservoirs.

The weather

At 0800 GMT (10 p.m. HKST), the tropical storm is centred over the Southern part of the Gulf of Thailand moving West at 10 knots. Pressure is generally over 1000 mb. A strong low pressure system is moving from South China Sea towards Hong Kong.

TAEJON RECAPTURED

Seoul, September 28. United States Marines and Army forces completed the liberation of Seoul at 11 a.m. local time today. Intelligence officers said that since the Inchon landing the Marines had taken 3,300 Red prisoners and inflicted 11,200 casualties on the Reds.

An American newspaper correspondent claimed this afternoon that he had gone five miles North of Seoul "without finding any war."

Colonel Puller termed the final defence of Seoul, which took a heavy toll of American casualties, a "rearguard action."

All main streets leading toward the central part of Seoul, which were littered with sandbags and machine-gun nests had to be knocked out before the Americans could advance.

24 miles from Parallel

As the United States Marines completed their victorious sweep across Seoul today, the United Nations forces plunged to within 24 miles of the 38th Parallel.

General Headquarters said United Nations forces recaptured the Kimpo airport area and were clearing out the town of Yang-gongni, 20 miles North-West of Seoul and only 24 miles South of the 38th Parallel.

Another announcement said South Korean Marines made five landings on islands off the Southern and Western shores of Korea since Monday.

Tugs forced to cast Liberty ships adrift

The Nationalist Navy intercepted two British tugs—Christine Moller and Margaret Moller—lugging two 5,000-ton "ghost" ships on the high seas North of Formosa on Wednesday afternoon and ordered them to cast off their tow and return to Hong Kong.

The release said ships of the U.S. Seventh Fleet bombed Fankochi Point with guns and planes yesterday morning. The point is on the Southern extremity of Ongjin peninsula below the 38th Parallel West and North of Inchon.

The release said: "United Nations troops continued clearing Seoul against small arms and mortar fire. In the area South of the Han United Nations troops drove approximately five miles North West of Kimpo and seized high ground and advanced to the town of Yanggong-ni."

25th Division advances

"Elements of the U.S. 25th Division registered advances of three miles in their attack West from Uiryeong. Another unit of the division reached a minefield and drove toward Sonchon. Other divisional elements advanced South West of Chinnu reporting little opposition."

The Sixth Division advanced about 10 miles North of Hamchang to Mungyeong vicinity against light resistance.

Heavy enemy resistance South of Yongu was overcome by the ROK Eighth Division and leading elements entered Yongu.

Another unit of the division seized Punggi. Elements of the Capital Division captured Chungyang early yesterday. On the East coast a unit of the ROK Third Division seized Uchi and raced six miles North.

Napalm, fire bombs, artillery and mortar shells annihilated North Korean company trapped in and around a railway tunnel six miles South of Suwon this afternoon and cleared the way for a complete link-up of the American Northern and Southern armies.

Four hours after the enemy pocket was wiped out, the commander of the First Cavalry Division, Major General Richard G. Stryker, and members of his staff flew to the Suwon airstrip and met Colonel Richard Overhiser, of San Antonio, Texas, to coordinate plans for blocking Communist retreat from the Southern front.

Fighting near the first American battleground of the Korean war, Seventh Division and Marine Corps, destroyed the Reds without wrecking the important 300-yard long tunnel in which the main body was hiding.

By 3 p.m. the railway between Suwon and Osan was cleared, and the American forces joined.

GI's recapture Taejon

The U.S. 24th Division recaptured Taejon today, two months and seven days after outnumbered Americans were forced to retreat from there in July, adds Associated Press.

Division's round trip down and back up "Heartbreak Highway."

American forces under Major General F. Dean began to evacuate Taejon on July 20 in bloody rear-guard fighting.

The following day, Communist invaders completed occupation of Taejon.

Ninety-one American prisoners of war were liberated today by two columns of the advancing U.S. 25th Division in deep South Korea.

Eighty of the captured Americans were freed at Namwon, the other 11 at Hadong, 32 air miles to the South East. Seven of those at Hadong were litter casualties.

All had been abandoned by the retreating Red-United Press and Associated Press.

All quiet in Tibet, Briton reports

Calcutta, September 28. "Lhasa is quiet and Tibetans are continuing their usual life," according to Mr. Reginald Fox, the Briton who for 14 years has kept Tibet in touch with the Western world.

Mr. Fox, the radio chief of the Tibetan Government, said, "I cannot see any reason for liberation threats (from the Chinese Communists) as Tibetans of all classes are happily content. As for so-called Anglo-American conspiracy, there are no signs of it in Tibet."

Mr. Fox, who left London 30 years ago for Tibet, has come to India for hospital treatment.

He was the first man to break the news of the atom bomb to Tibetans. His radio is often Tibet's only quick link with the outside world.

"Tibet is essentially a religious, secluded country, not wanting any outside interference with the Dalai Lama, who is greatly loved," Mr. Fox said. "Should any danger threaten the Dalai Lama, Tibetans will rise in his support."

The British radio expert said the Dalai Lama, who lives in China's Sikkim Province, has "not undergone the usual reincarnation tests, so any forcing him on Tibetans will be unsuccessful."—Associated Press.

General Dean reported held by Reds

With the U.S. First Cavalry Division in Korea, September 28.

American counter-intelligence officers said today that South Korean informers reported that they recently overheard Communist Army officers planning to move Major-General William F. Dean, from Chongju's stockade to Seoul.

General Dean has been missing since the July retreat from Taejon.

General Dean was commander of the U.S. 24th Division.

Three South Koreans who escaped from the Chongju stockade told American officers they heard North Korean officers discussing General Dean on Saturday. This was in connection with the reported plan for his removal to Seoul.

The Americans did not say whether the South Korean informers actually had seen the General before they escaped from Chongju.

Chongju was captured by the First Cavalry in a 100-mile advance from Pusan on Tuesday. The town was recaptured after a bitter battle last July. The Communists killed 200 civilians in the Chongju stockade, were massacred before the Red pulled out of the city. Associated Press.

Australian troops land in Korea

September 28.

A battalion of Australian "Diggers" landed at Pusan this afternoon, eager to come to grips with the North Korean Communists.

Tonight, trains are rushing the Australians to the battle zone.

"All right, we are late. But give us a chance and we will make up for lost time," shouted one rugged-looking, bearded veteran as the ship docked.

He spoke for the whole of the Battalion.

The "Diggers" had a touching welcome at the quayside.

First a crowd of Korean wharf workers clapped their hands as the ship drew alongside. The Australians cheered back.

Then a smartly turned out South Korean Navy band struck up a march.

A cluster of Korean women dressed gaily in ankle length frocks, who had gathered to greet the latest United Nations forces, waved small Korean and United Nations blue flags, keeping in time with the band music.

In Canberra, the Australian Army Minister, Mr. Joseph Francis, announced today that Australian troops have landed in Korea, adds Associated Press.

He declined to say more about their destination. The force is the Third Infantry Battalion comprising 37 officers and 923 men.

Meanwhile, members of the New Zealand expeditionary force now training for Korea have been informed that if they are not sent to Korea they will probably go to some other part of the world.

An unofficial Wellington report said it is understood that the New Zealand Government is expecting to be asked to provide part of an international military force under United Nations for police duty in possible danger spots.

Reds charge U.S. warship with shelling Chinese steamer in Yellow Sea

London, September 27.

The Communist New China News Agency reported tonight that an American warship shelled a Chinese merchant vessel in the Yellow Sea off Shantung peninsula on September 21.

The report was broadcast from Peking and picked up by Teleradio, which monitors radio transmissions from the Red China capital.

The Shantung peninsula juts out in the Yellow Sea like a finger pointed at Korea. Its promontory is slightly more than 100 miles on a straight line from the Korea West coast.

Tsingtao, its principal port on the Southern coast, was used as a U.S. naval base before its capture by the Chinese Reds.

The broadcast identified the American warship only as the "Destroyer D-29."

The Chinese vessel was named the Anhui which sailed out of Shihao on the South-East tip of Shantung en route to Antung on September 20. She was carrying cargo, 14 passengers and crew of eleven.

The broadcast did not indicate whether any casualties were suffered. It said an American plane flew over the ship after it was shelled.

The report said the American warship forced the merchant vessel to stop, drew alongside and questioned the crew and passengers, including four women and two children.

Submarine off Japan

Tokyo, September 28.

An unidentified submarine was sighted in the channel between Honshu, Japan's main island and Hokkaido this morning, according to a report from a ferry plying the Tsugaru Straits.

Officers of the ferry Oshima Maru said a mysterious submarine was sighted five miles North East of the Northern tip of Honshu about 7:20 a.m.

The Oshima Maru, which is the first radar equipped Japanese vessel, was en route to Hokkaido.

Accused says another man committed hammer-murder

That an ex-soldier friend of his had committed the murder for which he is standing trial was the defence put forward yesterday by Ng Shui, 26-year-old unemployed, at the Criminal Sessions.

Testifying on his own behalf, Ng told the jury how his friend apparently lost his temper while the two were being scolded by a woman, Chan Chun, and how his friend consequently struck her with a hammer.

According to the accused, he and his friend, Chan Ping, had visited the deceased at her house with a view of "getting some financial gains" in connection with an existing love triangle involving the woman. Ng is being defended by Mr. S. V. Gittins on instructions of Mr. K. F. Wong, the prosecutor. Mr. K. F. Wong, the prosecutor, who is assisted by Detective Inspector L. A. Nichol. The case is being taken by Mr. E. H. Williams, Acting Chief Justice, and a jury of six men and one woman.

According to the prosecution, Ng murdered the woman on July 7 in the cockpit of 32 Jordan Road, ground floor, where she resided. Mr. Heenan told the jury that previous day that during the last two years before Chan's death, a man named Tsui To-shing, alias Ah To, stayed with her as her husband.

On the morning of July 7, this principal tenant of the house, on awaking, saw the deceased talking to a man in her cubicle. She had, however, only a limited view and could only see the man's shoulders.

On the morning of July 7, this principal tenant of the house, on awaking, saw the deceased talking to a man in her cubicle. She had, however, only a limited view and could only see the man's shoulders.

Chan was taken to the Kowloon Hospital, where she died the same day of haemorrhage resulting from skull fracture. Police inquiries later revealed that Tsui To-shing had become friendly with another woman, Luk Mui, and had appeared to have divided his attentions between that woman and the deceased.

On June 22, a general quarrel took place at the residence of the deceased between herself and Luk. The next day, the accused—who was known to Tsui and Luk—came to see Tsui, and expressed his intentions of helping them out of their trouble.

The prosecution contended that the accused had interested himself in the triangle affair ostensibly to help the parties concerned settle the matter peacefully, but that he in fact was interested in financial gains.

Mr. Heenan had also contended that he eventually came to the conclusion that Chan realised his real motives. He accordingly went to her home on the day in question and talked her, seeing that she was of no further use to him. Tsui had, but the deceased's cubicle some days previously and had gone to stay with Luk.

Ng went to Macao the same day the woman was killed. He was shadowed there by the police, and was subsequently arrested. On his return here, he is alleged to have volunteered to make a confession to the effect that he was the killer.

Accused wounded
The first Crown witness yesterday was Dr. T. C. Pann, surgeon, who testified as to having examined the accused upon his detention here. Ng, he said, had a small wound to the right of his ear. Witness also said he examined the hammer found at the scene of the murder. It contained no blood stains at all. The reason for the absence of blood, he explained, was that when a blunt instrument is applied with force to the head, it causes concussion of the blood vessels and crushing of the tissues.

HK Trade Mission to Philippines

The second meeting of the Organising Committee for the Hong Kong Chinese Trade Mission to the Philippines was held at the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday.

The meeting decided that registration of prospective participants in the trade mission would begin from September 28 to October 3.

This application is to be followed by formal applications at the office of any one of the three sponsor institutions, the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, the Hong Kong Chinese Manufacturers Union and the Pao Ching Company.

When an application is approved the travelling document of the participant will be arranged by the organising committee and the visa obtained through the help of the Philippine General Chamber of Commerce.

The programme for the visit will be surveys on the financial condition, commerce, industries, national resources, and transportation facilities in the Philippines.

First class hotel accommodations will be provided for the members of the Mission and a full sight-seeing tour will be arranged.

It is expected that as a result of the Trade Mission there will be good prospects for future import trade.

NATIONAL ANTHEM IN CINEMAS

Sir,—With reference to your leader on the National Anthem, in which you state that "it is a custom that grows up nobody knows why or how," I remember that this custom started in England during World War One. As an incentive to the patriotic, the National Anthem was played before the performances. Before World War One, it used not to be played.

When the war ended, it continued to be played, and it has been played ever since. I agree with you—it has been my opinion since the end of World War One that the National Anthem should not be played at the end of ordinary performances. It is quite out of place. After all, you cannot expect hundreds of people who attend these performances—most of whom are probably quite ignorant of what the National Anthem is—by the way, it is not the National Anthem, but the National Anthem should not be played in conditions where it might be disrespectful.

Yours etc.
C.M. FAURE.

VOLUNTEERING IN HONG KONG

Sir,—A short while ago you published a letter in this column signed by "Civis" on the subject of volunteering.

I am a comparative newcomer to this Colony and know very little about the arrangements for covering civilian volunteers. From what I can gather a perfectly good set-up is in being with a very lukewarm response. I am British by birth and have no deep roots in Hong Kong, but I have an interest and loyalty as far as the British Commonwealth is concerned.

As I see it there is here a quite considerable British community, backed by the peoples of other nationalities, who are loyal to the race which are their interests and who, at the moment, have a particular allegiance for the actions of the United Nations. From experience in British Colonies in other parts of the world I have always found a complete readiness on the part of the people to support any defence effort. I am quite willing to do my bit here, but I would appreciate the views of some of your readers on this defence set-up in Hong Kong, as although I am keen enough to help, I am not a hero for lost causes.

Yours etc.

EDUCATION IN HONG KONG

Sir,—Mr. Christopher Cox has left the Colony. Our educational inspectors and other authorities are back again to their normal functions in the direction and supervision of our cultural and pedagogical affairs. Certain textbooks in the Chinese language on Civics have been published and used by the vernacular schools. They apparently aim at the training of Hong Kong-minded pupils. There are no glorifications of Joseph Stalin, Mao Tse-tung and the most democratic dictatorship. There are no accusations against the American aggression in the Far East. The fact that the local pro-British papers denounced such publications is prima facie evidence that Hong Kong's educational supervisors have given up their traditional system of laissez-faire.

The supply of Chinese textbooks for vernacular classes may, however, not lead our schools very far if other fundamental defects of the Colony's educational policy and institutions are not rectified. Up to now, our inspectors have advised themselves more to principles than to doctrines. They do not appear to concern themselves with the distribution of the students' willions and let school managers and teachers do what they like. Teachers and pupils who for centuries have been taught with high honour and respect, are looked down upon and paid like janitors, cleaners and coolies. They are kicked at and dismissed at the whims of the managers of their wives. What was described in a satire over Radio Hong Kong some time ago as not fully representing the miserable lives of our vernacular teachers and pupils who were not able to maintain a family of three. Under this system one cannot expect that our teachers and pupils should be satisfied with our way of life or our institutions, democracy, which works out not to their benefit but to the benefit of others. The printing and distribution of a new textbook cannot alter the thoughts of teachers and pupils who are hungry for food and knowledge.

For the intelligence and every healthy sentiment among some of our Chinese educational supervisors towards those who agitate against the inadequate spending of school fees by school managers, have made it very difficult for them to change their minds. The fact that the teachers and pupils are hungry for food and knowledge, and that the system is not fully representing the miserable lives of our vernacular teachers and pupils who were not able to maintain a family of three. Under this system one cannot expect that our teachers and pupils should be satisfied with our way of life or our institutions, democracy, which works out not to their benefit but to the benefit of others. The printing and distribution of a new textbook cannot alter the thoughts of teachers and pupils who are hungry for food and knowledge.

Major-General L. D. Nicholls, now Managing Director of Cable and Wireless, Limited, was Chief Signal Officer to the Supreme Allied Commander, North Africa, and took a prominent part in the formation of the original Home Organisation. In the war he was in command of the Home Organisation, served in Italy, Austria, Greece, Middle East and South East Asia, using forty British mobile wireless stations, or specially fitted ships.

Major-General Nicholls is expected to visit Hong Kong shortly, and will be met by the Chief of the Home Organisation, the Hon. Mr. J. C. Stewart, at the airport.

HAVE YOU HEARD?

Sir,—When will the majority of Hong Kong residents become accustomed to cars and come to treat them as a child does his first bicycle? The phenomenon of a child toying with his first trike and sounding the horn like mad is familiar to everyone. It is rather sad to find his Dad and countless other Dads playing the same game with their cars. Some drivers give the impression that driving a buffalo is the full limit to which they can be trusted. To notify the whole world that they are behind the wheel seems to be their main objective in life; whether they have paid for the vehicle or not is justifiably open to speculation.

Your taxi-driver keeps one finger on the horn for more than a quarter of any journey. Perhaps he is not aware of the fact, so busy is he watching the meter in the hope that it will not stop at $40 cents, should it happen to get over the next number and reach $50 cents he stands a better chance of a bigger tip. Tooting of horns is perhaps understandable in very congested areas like Wan Chai or West Point, but why must we have the same diabolical practice on quiet roads in residential areas? From my own observation I can give one answer that explains, in part only, the point in question. It is a blatant case of tooting; and this, I understand, is punishable by law. A taxi-driver, while going up to a residential area blows like mad in the hope that some resident about to leave his house or phone a taxi, may wait a few minutes till the disturbance of the peep, having dumped his load, returns to pick him up. Would Taxi-Companies, who are making good money by obliging some and annoying others, give their employees a course in civility? Would Police Officers, on their ordinary beats, view this unnecessary tooting as an offence of the same magnitude as stopping or backing for would-be clients?

If taxi-drivers were the only offenders, then there might be some hope of a gradual change in their part or of resignation on the part of others. There are unfortunately too many owners of cars who, if they were told they lacked the civic spirit, would be highly incensed. You see, such a thing as tooting is a habit, and a habit is hard to break. When finally the tooting is collected the ceremony ends, with the usual flourish of the horn. It does not once but many times as if the rate occupants were testing the durability of the hinges or merely reassuring themselves that the door was still there. Then with as much noise as that heard from the deck of an aircraft carrier, the driver revs the engine, and the car impatient, as if it realised that it has outstayed its welcome in the district, shouts off to the measured notes of a tooting horn.

Yours etc.
QUANDO.

C and W sending unit to Korea

In order to provide for rapid transmission of British news from the front in Korea, Cable and Wireless, Limited, has made plans to send to Korea a wireless telegraph unit manned by a crew of European engineers and operators.

The unit will handle war correspondence messages and messages from British forces in Korea. The personnel and equipment will leave England by air to assemble in Hong Kong. It is hoped that the unit will be in operation by mid-October.

This is a revival of the scheme in operation during the 1929-40 war when a Telecom Organisation was formed to give Cable and Wireless a wireless telegraph unit manned by a crew of European engineers and operators.

Alleged bribery case

That he had given Henry Tang, alias Tang Chiu, the impression that money was required for applications for entry into the Colony would be passed by the Immigration Department was denied by Sub-Inspector N. J. Rumbelow during cross-examination by Mr. Brook A. Bernacchi before Mr. J. Reynolds at Central yesterday.

The cross-examination of Inspector Rumbelow who had given evidence against Henry Tang, alias Tang Chiu, former manager of the Hong Kong and China Travel and Transport Service of 47, Connaught Road, Central, charged with corruptly giving HK$1,000 to Inspector Rumbelow at 7, Park Road on June 21 as a bribe, concluded yesterday.

Mr. Brook A. Bernacchi, instructed by Mr. F.D. Hammond, is defending counsel for Tang who is alleged to have given a bribe of HK$1,000 to Inspector Rumbelow as an inducement to endeavour to speed up approval for applications for Hong Kong entry permits submitted by defendant to the Immigration Department.

Detective Sub-Inspector T. Kavanagh of the Anti-Corruption Branch, Police Headquarters, conducted the prosecution. During the cross-examination, witness denied throughout that he had been instructed to lead Tang into saying things which would incriminate him (Tang) during their conversation at 7, Park Road on the evening of June 21.

Witness' denial

Witness further denied that he had neglected his duty by not handing the application for entry permits within five days of their being sent in to him.

All students wishing to enter Universities or Colleges in the United Kingdom in October 1951 should make application on forms to be obtained from the Education Department, Leighton House (2nd floor), Leighton Hill Road.

These forms, duly completed, should be returned to the undersigned not later than Saturday, October 21, 1950.

Students should bear in mind the present pressure on United Kingdom Universities in general and the medical schools in particular. Applications in the undermentioned categories will therefore stand little chance of being considered:—

- (1) where desired courses of study are available at Hongkong University.
- (2) applications for medical schools except for post-graduate or research studies or in very exceptional cases.

It must also be emphasized that almost all United Kingdom Universities and Colleges now require Colonial candidates to be sponsored by their respective colonies and are not prepared to consider candidates not so sponsored. All prospective candidates are therefore urged to make application in the manner indicated above and not to apply individually to a University or College.

ECAFE official in Bangkok

Dr. P. S. Lokanathan, Executive Secretary of ECAFE, who returned to Bangkok on Monday after a three-week visit to India, Pakistan and Ceylon, expressed satisfaction with the results of his visit and talks with high-ranking Government officials in these countries.

On the invitation of the Planning Commission in India he spent a week there and had fruitful discussions with the Commission on various aspects of planning in India including the scope and method of planning in the private sector, controls in the planned economy and financial machinery for mobilising domestic capital. Pandit Javaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India, suggested to Dr. Lokanathan that the Bureau of Flood Control might visit Assam which had suffered as a result of floods following the recent earthquakes in the area.

At Karachi with the concurrence of the Government of Pakistan he fixed the dates of the next meeting of the Committee on Industry and Trade on February 14, 1951 and the date of the Seventh Session on February 27, both of which would be held in Lahore.

In Colombo, Dr. Lokanathan urged upon the Prime Minister and other Ministers the importance of more active participation on the part of the Ceylon Government in the work and activities of ECAFE, and was assured of Ceylon's Government participation in the forthcoming Transport Conference, Statistical Conference and other conferences. At Colombo he also held discussions with the Standing Committee of the Commonwealth Technical Assistance Programme, in particular on the best method of ensuring effective co-ordination between ECAFE and the Commonwealth Committee for Technical Assistance. It is understood that a request has been made to the United Nations to send a high representative to effect this co-ordination. It was further suggested that an ECAFE officer should represent the United Nations in this matter.

Sentence postponed

Sentence on two Chinese found guilty of the charge of assault with intent to rob was postponed yesterday at the Criminal Sessions, pending a Full Court ruling as to what constituted the charge in law.

The two men were Chan Cheung and Chan Fok, both unemployed. Chan Fok, accused, was given six years and 12 strokes by Mr. Justice Gault, Senior Judge, in view of the fact that he had previously pleaded guilty to possession of arms.

About midnight on June 21, the occupants of a hut at Causeway Bay were awakened by the presence of the two accused in the room, one of whom had a revolver.

One of the occupants, Nai So-Kit, however, managed to get out of the room and call a police whistle. The intruders then ran off, but were chased by Nai, who was struck by one of the men he was chasing.

The two were subsequently arrested. The jury of six men and one woman yesterday unanimously found both accused guilty after retiring for a few minutes.

Nai was then commended by Mr. Justice Gault for the bravery which he had shown. Mr. A. Landside, Crown Counsel, prosecuted, assisted by Detective Sub-Inspector Scragg.

The Authority on Authoritative

CONCENTRATE ON IT

A LONG, almost established suit in the dummy is a terrible asset to the declarer if he can manage to run it. Ordinarily, when the defenders see such a powerful weapon, they should concentrate their fire on thwarting it. If they do, the chances are they will raise the hood with the contract. If they don't, the declarer is likely to have the easiest of all paths toward reaching his goal. The defenders therefore should seek to block the suit by means of holding up plays and otherwise and not the same time to destroy any dummy re-entries by the way they play.

UN TROOPS MAY CROSS PARALLEL PURELY AS MILITARY MEASURE

Decisions on occupation to be left to the UN

Washington, September 27

General Douglas MacArthur has been authorised to send United Nations troops into North Korea if necessary as a military measure to destroy the power of the fleeing North Korean Army. This was reported today by responsible informants who said however, that the longer range political question of establishing order in North Korea and occupying that area must be decided by the United Nations. Thus the issue of "crossing the 38 Parallel", as it is usually described, has been divided into two parts.

Speed-up in UK atom work

London, September 27. The Government has ordered work to be speeded up at Britain's new atomic centres at Capenhurst, Cheshire, and Sellafield, on the Cumberland coast.

Britain will shortly have seven such centres in all. Sellafield will house two large atomic piles for the production of plutonium.

Much of the work at the Capenhurst centre, expected to be completed early in 1952, will be on the production of uranium 233 and will be secret.

The two atomic centres, it is expected, will employ 10,000 workers—possibly more—when completed.

Many atom scientists are to be recruited from overseas countries. While it was expected that construction would be speeded up following the Prime Minister's statement on defence, it is believed that the Government has also been influenced by new unemployment figures which will be announced this week.

These are expected to show that Britain has more than 310,000 unemployed.

The construction of another new atomic plant at Aldermaston, near Reading, will raise Britain's total to seven.—Reuter.

Alameda, California, September 27. Fifty American fighter planes for French forces in Indo-China will be shipped shortly for Saigon aboard the French aircraft carrier Dixmude.

The exact date of departure is not known. The planes, Grumman Hellcats, were loaded on Tuesday.—Associated Press.

Bitter controversy looms over Kashmir

London, September 27. The Pakistani Foreign Minister, Sir Zafarullah Khan, has fired the first shot in what threatens to be an exceptionally bitter controversy at Lake Success over the Indo-Pakistani dispute on Kashmir. "The Times" said in an editorial today.

"The Times" thought the request that the Security Council should get with speed and vigour on the Kashmir question embodied demands made by the Pakistani Government that the United Nations should shoulder the full responsibility for the issue.

"Kashmir appears to Pakistan a test case of the capacity of the Commonwealth to secure the right of a people to determine its own political destiny."

The editorial then referred to reports on the United Nations Mediator's report on his failure to effect a settlement on Kashmir.

"Public opinion in Pakistan was ill-prepared for the shock it received when extracts from Sir Owen Dixon's reports were published in Karachi," it said. "These extracts gave the unfortunate impression that his findings were wholly in favour of India."

Pakistan believed Sir Owen's recommendation that the Security Council should renounce responsibility for Kashmir settlement meant confirmation of India in her existing control over a major portion of the territory and the people of the state.

"For these reasons, the Pakistani delegation at Lake Success will do all in its power to persuade the Security Council to pigeon-hole the Dixon report and to treat the Kashmir dispute as a live issue of which the United Nations cannot disbar itself."

Meanwhile, Lord Radcliffe, who defined the frontiers between India and Pakistan when the sub-continent was partitioned in 1947, said today there had been no prior agreement that the line should be drawn in such a way as to give India access to Kashmir.

The story of this secret arrangement has been going around

On the one hand is the necessity of defeating the Communist forces finally and completely. On the other, is the question of long-term occupation policy.

The decision attributed to military necessity was presumably approved by President Harry Truman and reviewed by the Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Acheson, with the foreign policy chiefs of friendly governments at United Nations headquarters in New York.

According to this decision, authorities here said, General MacArthur has the power to take whatever action may be needed to break up the Communist Army.

That, it was said, probably means sending troops across the 38th Parallel in pursuit of Communist forces because otherwise all the North Korean divisions able to escape from the South would find refuge behind the Parallel, regroup and again be in a position to disturb the peace.

This decision, it was said, is based on a United Nations Security Council resolution adopted on June 27 which called on member nations to furnish assistance to South Korea "to repel the armed attack of the North Koreans and to restore international peace and security in the area."

The basic idea underlying the current decision is that the restoration of "international peace and security in the area" is an objective which covers crossing the 38th Parallel for purely military purposes.

As for the long-range question of what to do about North Korea—whether to create a UN Commission to unify the country and hold elections—that is regarded as a matter on which more time can be taken without prejudicing the chances of a complete UN victory.

In Washington's view, therefore, this phase of the issue of "crossing the 38th Parallel" can and must be decided by the United Nations because it involves matters which are essentially political rather than military. The United States, Britain and France have agreed that United Nations forces in Korea should cross the 38th Parallel only with General Assembly approval.

An official source in London, who reported this tonight, said the General Assembly is almost certainly going to be asked to give that approval.

Up to UN. The source said the big Western powers are thinking broadly along those lines: There will be little or no point in cleaning up the military situation in South Korea and trusting to luck that the Northerners will not try a new adventure once again.

The General Assembly should then be asked to settle immediately the status of the 38th Parallel. Is it still a valid boundary, or should it be crossed?

If the world forum holds that the demarcation line—laid down originally to divide Russian and American zones of Occupation—is still valid, then the UN forces in Korea would not cross it.

If it is held invalid—either because the occupation has ended or because the North Koreans have made it null and void—then it is for the General Assembly to say so and thus give General MacArthur's forces the green light to cross it.

Danger of clash assessed. The feeling of the Big Three, according to the informant, is that UN forces should cross the 38th Parallel.

That is why the issue will probably be tossed into the General Assembly, where Russia has no veto, rather than into the Security Council where Russia has.

The big powers were said to have carefully assessed the chances of clashing either with Russia or Red China.

Reports received from diplomatic representatives of the big Western powers both in Moscow and Peking have indicated that neither Russia nor China are likely to commit themselves to an outright clash in Korea at this moment.

The informant commented: "It is a risk we've got to take." The information came out after the Foreign Office confirmed reports from Lake Success saying Britain has agreed to take the initiative in seeking a Korean peace settlement.

British plan. The British were reported to be canvassing support for a resolution to the General Assembly setting forth the shape of a future Korea.

Some terms of the resolution were said to call for: An independent united Korea. Provision of continuing UN aid to keep the peace in Korea.

Korea-wide elections for a democratic government which would be held under UN auspices.

The informant said he was unable immediately to make clear whether Britain would put in the resolution to the Assembly on its own or with other nations.—Associated Press.

Paris, September 27. King Farouk of Egypt, whose French holiday is drawing to a close, arrived in Monte Carlo today on board his personal steam yacht.—Reuter.

MP's have a close shave

Singapore, September 27. Three minutes saved six Members of Parliament from a guerrilla ambush in Malaya. Among them was Lord Lis-towel, former Minister of State for the Colonies.

They passed a spot in Central Johore where three minutes later a police constable was shot dead.

After visiting two estates on Monday morning, the Members of Parliament cancelled their trip to a latex rubber installation in the afternoon as time was short, according to the "Malaya Tribune".

If they had not done so, they would most likely have passed the ambush point after the guerrillas had taken up their positions.—Reuter.

"AMERICAN FRONT LINE BEYOND RHINE"

Washington, September 27. General Omar Bradley, Chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, declared today that the United States must establish its front line in Europe, beyond the Rhine, to save Western Germany from the Russians.

He told a National Press Club luncheon: "In my opinion if we put our front line on the Rhine we are facing the inevitable prospect of giving up Western Germany into the hands of Soviet Russia."

General Bradley added that he considered that the defence line of the United States and its Western Allies should lie in the centre of Europe and beyond the Rhine.

That was why, he said, the United States had taken an active interest in the rearmament, in some form, of Western Germany.

General George Marshall, the United States Defence Secretary, declared in a speech at Cleveland tonight that it would be folly for anyone to believe that the United States would remain forever free from the danger of sudden and violent aggression.

He told a meeting of Red Cross workers: "Today we live in the era of the guided missile, the atomic bomb and long-range planes and submarines capable of delivering attacks far from their home bases."

In the light of recent experience it would be folly for this country to assume that it will remain forever free from such dangers."

Speaking of the efforts of those forces that precipitated this armed conflict in Korea, General Bradley said: "They cannot be defeated by military force alone. In this struggle, the strong weapons will be of singleness of purpose, sympathy for the oppressed and the will to submerge individual ambitions for the betterment of the world."—Reuter.

Berlin reprisal taken by British. Berlin, September 27. British armed military police today occupied the West Berlin locks and, assisted by West Berlin police, detained a total of 45 East German barges after meticulously checking documents and loads.

They claimed insufficient documentation or overweight of loads as the reason for the detention.

Political observers in Berlin believed that the British action was meant as a reprisal against the repeated Soviet interference with inter-zonal barge traffic on the Elbe River.

Under the pretext of insufficient documentation or overweight, Soviet officers have ordered several barges to unload their cargoes and so far half a million West-mark worth of scrap and non-ferrous metal, which are in short supply in Eastern Germany, have been seized.

A few hours after the locks were occupied by the British, the Soviet authorities ordered East German barges on their way to Berlin to turn back to avoid detention in West Berlin.—Reuter.

Call to North Koreans to stop fighting

New York, September 27.

Mr. Lester B. Pearson, Canada's delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, today called on the North Korean Communists to cease fighting.

If they did, it might not be necessary for the UN Forces to advance beyond their present positions, he said.

The General Assembly, meanwhile, buzzed with talk about the 38th Parallel in Korea, the boundary between the Communist North zone and the UN backed Southern zone of the Republic of Korea.

With military action rapidly approaching a decision in Korea, the Assembly is faced with the problem of deciding whether the UN forces should cross the 38th Parallel into North Korea.

Several delegates here said the UN forces will have to go ahead North of the 38th Parallel.

In an important policy speech, Mr. Pearson told the Assembly it soon will be necessary to deal with the post-war period in Korea.

He suggested the Assembly speed action on a resolution calling for:

Free Korea

1. A united free Korea achieved by United Nations action.

2. UN assistance to the Korean people "to establish peace and order throughout their territory as the firm foundation for democratic institutions and free self-government."

3. Assurance to the Korean people that once peace has been restored "no nation will exploit the present situation in Korea for its own particular advantage."

This means a Korea "without foreign bases and free of foreign military domination."

Mr. Pearson said UN forces must be left free to do whatever necessary to pacify the country and prevent a repetition of the North Korean aggression.

This was interpreted as broad enough to mean that General MacArthur's command could push North of the 38th Parallel, if necessary.—Associated Press.

INDONESIA TO JOIN TALKS ON SE ASIA AID

London, September 27. Indonesia will join the Commonwealth talks taking place here on aid to South and South East Asia as an observer.

She will be represented by her Ambassador here, Dr. S. Subandrio.

The Ministers of seven Commonwealth Countries have been meeting here since Monday to discuss the six-year Commonwealth plan which involves programmes worth £1,725 for under-developed countries.

Today, they decided to set up a technical aid bureau with headquarters in Colombo.

The functions of the bureau are expected to be mainly executive.

The scheme includes the training of technical staff, the supply of experts, instructive and advisory missions to countries, technical aid and also the provision of equipment required for the training and use of technical experts.—Reuter.

INDIAN OFFICIAL FOR PEKING

Washington, September 27. The Indian Embassy today reported that its First Secretary, Mr. T. N. Kaur, was on his way to a new assignment as counsellor of the Indian Embassy in Peking.

He is to fly from New York today for India on his way to his new post.

"An Embassy spokesman said Mr. Kaur is one of the most brilliant of the younger diplomats in the Indian Diplomatic Corps. He is expected to be of great assistance in his new post."

Mr. Kaur was assigned to Washington in April 1949 after serving over a year as First Secretary in Moscow.—United Press.

UN PLANS FOR KOREA

Flushing Meadows, September 27.

Plans for the creation of a nine-man commission of Asian and Pacific countries to handle the political and economic unification and rehabilitation of Korea after the defeat of the North Korean regime, neared completion today.

The resolution to establish the commission, tentatively sponsored by Britain, the Philippines, Norway and Australia, will go before the powerful Political Committee of the United Nations General Assembly at its first meeting on Thursday or Friday.

Representatives of the four countries to sponsor the resolution will meet privately on Wednesday afternoon to iron out the final details of the plan. The commission will aim to reconstruct post-war Korea into a single unified State.

Four nations tentatively picked to man the commission are the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Canada. The other five members will be selected on a geographic basis to represent Arab, Latin American and European countries.

The resolution, however, will probably dodge the issue of whether General MacArthur's United Nations forces shall be authorised to cross the 38th Parallel. The measure in its present form glosses over that issue.

It will, however, call for democratic elections in North Korea under United Nations supervision and for the United Nations forces to remain in the country long enough to stabilise domestic conditions so that the commission can proceed with economic and political rehabilitation.—United Press.

Labour Minister warns workers. London, September 27. The Labour Minister, Mr. George Isaacs, went to the microphone tonight to urge Britain's 8,000,000 trade unionists to defeat a Communist conspiracy to disorganise British industry.

Mr. Isaacs declared that the one sure and effective way of meeting the danger was for workers to refuse to take part in any activity not sponsored officially by the trade unions.

That would be more effective than any legislation, he said.

Among Mr. Isaacs' listeners were millions of Londoners deprived of heating and cooking facilities because of an unofficial London gas works strike.

Londoners who depend on gas for heating shivered today on the 13th and coldest day of the strike.

A diminishing gas flow brought more factories in North London to a standstill.

The strike spread today, about 60 maintenance engineers at Vauxhall (South London) joining the 1,400 already out in North London gasworks.

The men have stopped work because their demand for a three-pence an hour wage increase has been refused.

Spurred by a sharp letter from the Labour Minister, telling them to treat the strike as a matter of urgency, leaders of the men's union today made new appeals for an end of the strike.—Reuter.

Rumoured peace overtures discounted in UN circles

New York, September 27.

United Nations, American and Russian sources today discounted rumours that the North Koreans have indicated they were willing to stop fighting and accept a United Nations settlement.

Two news services carried the report, crediting it to responsible but anonymous sources at United Nations headquarters.

1. An armistice ending hostilities.

2. Withdrawal of North Korean forces behind the 38th Parallel as ordered by the United Nations Security Council in its historic resolution adopted on June 25 within 14 hours of the outbreak of war.

3. Withdrawal of American forces to the limits of the narrow bridgehead they held around the South Korean port of Pusan before General MacArthur's forces forced a climax to the war with their landing at Inchon and their capture of Seoul. United Nations forces from other countries would occupy the rest of South Korea.

4. Holding of elections throughout all of Korea under United Nations supervision.

Neither United States nor United Nations sources had received peace proposals, directly or indirectly, from the North Koreans. The immediate reaction of some was that the reported offer might be a "trial balloon."—Associated Press and United Press.

SOUTH KOREAN SCHEME

New York, September 27. The Foreign Minister of the Republic of Korea is to ask the United Nations to adopt an eight-point programme for unification, recognition and rehabilitation of the country.

Colonel Ben Limb told the Press that an international police force should be kept in Korea until the country can stand on its own. Colonel Limb will submit the following programme to the General Assembly.

1. The Communist aggressors in Korea should be soundly defeated and their leaders punished; the great masses of the people of Northern Korea are not to be punished, however, but liberated.

2. Korea should be unified—now that the 38th Parallel barrier has been broken down by Communist arms it should never be restored.

3. An election should be held under UN supervision to permit Northern Korea to fill the 100 seats that have been kept vacant in the National Assembly.

4. An international police force of the United Nations should remain in Korea "until our own armed forces are sufficient to guarantee our national security."

5. An extensive housing programme is urgently needed.

6. Long-range rehabilitation and construction are even a bigger problem. "Unless the United Nations helps restore the damage that has been done, the Korean nation will suffer the aftermath of war that generations of sacrifice can hardly repair."

7. The Republic of Korea should be admitted to the United Nations.

8. United Nations decisions on the Korean question should be made with the full participation and concurrence of the Rhee Government.

President Syngman Rhee said that the only acceptable terms for ending the conflict in Korea are unconditional surrender of the Communists.

"It is up to the Korean (South Korean) Government to make any terms of peace and our terms are unconditional surrender," Mr. Rhee said. "Mr. Rhee had not been advised of any North Korean peace offers. It was obvious, however, that he did not classify as worthy of serious consideration the reported Communist conditions."—United Press.

TARIFF CONFERENCE MOST IMPORTANT IN WORLD HISTORY

Torquay, September 27.

Harso-trading on a global scale commences here tomorrow with representatives of nearly 40 nations opening an International Tariff Conference.

Task of the delegates is to pull down trade barriers through agreed reductions in tariff charges. The job may last from six to nine months and will probably be the largest concession-swapping meeting in all history.

Represented at the conference are signatories of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which held previous meetings at Geneva in 1947 and at Annecy, France, in 1949, plus seven nations which have accepted invitations to join the Agreement.

From Thursday until the conference ends, these representatives—many of them armed with prior authority from their governments to enter tariff-altering agreements—will negotiate with other delegates in a round-robin series of meetings.

Results of the negotiations will be secret until the conference ends and formal announcements of its results are made. Many delegations brought with them special security officers to enforce the rule.

The United States, with a delegation of more than 100, will seek to swap tariff concessions with at least 24 of the nations. Britain has announced plans to seek agreements with 12 member countries.

Western Germany, long a high-tariff country, will be under strong pressure from both the United States and the British Empire to lower its barriers in the interest of improving international trade.

Czechs here

Czechoslovakia is the only Iron Curtain country to be represented at Torquay.

Battered South Korea has accepted an invitation to participate. Other first-timers at the international tariff-cutting meeting include Austria, the German Federal Republic (West Germany), Peru, the Philippines, Turkey and Uruguay.

Some 700 delegates are housed in three hotels which during the summer season are the best seaside resort accommodations in England. Meetings will be in Torquay's giant Marine Pavilion. L. D. Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner in London and Chairman of the 1949 Tariff Conference in France, will open the Torquay Conference.

Speakers at the opening session—the only one at which the Press and the public will be admitted—include Harold Wilson, President of the British Board of Trade and chief of the British delegation, Andre Philip, Chairman of the French delegation, Edouardo Portaro, head of the Peruvian delegation, and Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorpe, chief United States delegate.

Difficult task

After Thursday's meetings, negotiators will commence their difficult task of bilateral trades, under the provisions that any concessions granted one nation must be extended to all other members of the tariff and trade agreements.

Britain's practice of the preferences for Commonwealth members—long under attack—will receive a fresh barrage from most participants in the conference.

United States tariff walls, already far reduced by earlier concessions, will get another smash from nations which have goods to sell in America. The American delegation has authority under the Reciprocal Trade Act to cut existing tariff rates by 50 per cent.

Britain's delegation will attempt to swap tariff concessions with the United States, the Philippines, Western Germany, Austria, Turkey, Peru, France, Belgium, Holland, Italy, Greece and Sweden. The United States agenda calls for an exchange of agreements if negotiations succeed at Torquay with Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Cuba, Denmark, the Dominican Republic, France, Guatemala, Western Germany, India, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Indonesia, Sweden, South Africa, Korea, Peru, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

Members' claim

Members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade—famously known among delegates as GATT—claim the organization through its two previous conferences made these contributions to the freeing of international trade:

1. It has provided a bed-rock on which to base permanent removals of trade barriers.

2. It has restrained countries from taking one-sided action to suit their convenience without measuring its effect on the trade of other countries.

3. It has brought together in a persistent atmosphere of goodwill a large group of countries previously related in their trade policies only by individual arrangements.

4. In lowering U.S. tariffs, it has helped offer better opportunities for selling goods in American markets and for improving dollar balances abroad.

5. It has provided a court where cases of discrimination and hardship have been argued and settled with the least possible hindrance to world trade.

These are the countries participating in this year's conference: Australia, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, Britain, Burma, Canada, Ceylon, Chile, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, France, Finland, Greece, Haiti, India, Indonesia, Italy, Korea (provisionally), Lebanon, Liberia, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Philippines, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, Sweden, Syria, Turkey, United States, West Germany, Uruguay, Guatemala and Mexico have sent observers to the conference.—Associated Press.

ANGLO-DANISH NEGOTIATIONS

London, September 27.

Britain and Denmark today broke off their negotiations on butter after failing to agree over the Danish request for higher prices.

The Danish delegation, who said that they did not regard the negotiations as concluded, are returning home to report.—Reuter.

Franco's trip into Portugal

Oporto, September 27.

General Francisco Franco, the Spanish Chief of State, and the Portuguese Prime Minister, Dr. Antonio Salazar, today made a surprise visit to Oporto from Spain, where Dr. Salazar has been staying with the Spanish leader for some days.

As with Dr. Salazar's Spanish visit, which he made incognito, no announcement had been made of the trip across the frontier. The Spanish and Portuguese leaders travelled in the same car from Vigo, North West Spain.

Travelling with the party were Senor Martin Arango, the Spanish Foreign Minister, the Spanish Ambassador to Portugal, Senor Nicolas Franco, and Senor Carneiro Pacheco, the Portuguese Ambassador in Madrid.

They were escorted by a platoon of police motorcyclists and a squadron of cavalry as far as the Spanish frontier.

Dr. Salazar and General Franco were welcomed in Oporto by the Portuguese Defence Minister, Lieutenant-Colonel Fernando dos Santos Costa, at the barracks of the Portuguese crack 6th Infantry.

General Franco visited a famous cellar in Oporto to taste the port wine. He was promised that a new post would be created in his honour to be called by his title "Caudillo."

General Franco, Dr. Salazar and Colonel Santos Costa then visited the barracks of the 2nd Regiment of Heavy Artillery, where General Franco inspected a military parade followed by a march-past.—Reuter.

ITALY TO PLACE ARMS ORDERS

Rome, September 27.

Italy is to place orders immediately for 150,000 million lire (£38,000,000) worth of arms and equipment to bring her Army up to the peace treaty limit of 12 divisions.

The Defence Minister, Signor Pacciardi, announcing this today, did not indicate which country would receive the orders for all the arms and equipment which cannot be produced in Italy.

The Italian Cabinet today completed a long series of Cabinet meetings devoted to defence planning with a decision to introduce a new anti-sabotage law.

A communique said that the new law, to be drawn up by a committee of Ministers, would "bring up to date the dispositions against military and economic sabotage and those generally concerning the security of the country."

The major decisions taken during the week's meetings constituted the Italian Government's first large-scale reaction to the Korean war and general Western rearmament.

As part of the reinforcement of the security police, the Government announced that it will create eight new mobile battalions consisting of steel-helmet police carrying revolvers, truncheons and carbines, transported in jeeps or armoured cars.

The present road and railway police will be increased.—Reuter.

COLD RECEPTION OF 'PEACE PLAN'

Washington, September 27.

The specific terms of North Korea's reported peace offer would not be acceptable to the United States, but might provide a basis for negotiation, diplomatic officials indicated tonight.

Proposals to withdraw North Korean forces behind the 38th Parallel and to permit United Nations-sponsored elections throughout all of Korea agreed with the objective of the United Nations and the United States. However, diplomats balked at the Red proposal that American forces withdraw to the Pusan bridgehead, leaving United Nations forces from other countries to occupy the rest of South Korea.

There were not enough United Nations forces in Korea, besides the Americans safely to occupy South Korea. The United Nations forces would undoubtedly be greatly outnumbered by the Communist guerrillas and the whole victory would be jeopardized.—United Press.

WESTERN GERMAN EXPORTS UP

Frankfurt, September 27.

West German exports to Eastern Europe were more than trebled in the second quarter of 1950 compared with the same period of 1949, according to American High Commission figures issued today.

This year's second quarter total was $37,794,000 compared with $9,277,000 for the second quarter of 1949. The second quarter figures were a post-war record.

"This peak was chiefly accounted for by increased deliveries of machinery, iron and steel mill products, chemical manufactures, and iron and steel scrap," the American report said.—Reuter.

Official sources professed no knowledge of the North Korean peace feelers, but the highly reliable sources which made the information available to the United Press said there was no doubt of the authenticity of the reported offer of the North Koreans to end the conflict.

He won 77 million

Giovanni Cappello, Ticket collector of Salerno, in Italy, won 77 million lire (approx. £45,295) when he correctly forecast the results of 12 soccer matches with the "Totocalcio". Now he plans to open a tourist agency. Photo shows Giovanni Cappello holding up 1,000 lire notes when he received 1,000,000 lire on account, in the office of the "Totocalcio" in Rome. (A.P. Photo).

British ships, planes, tanks in cold storage

By JOHN STARR

Britain's "silent" military reserves—the ships which never go to sea, the planes packed close in maintenance hangars, the long lines of tanks immobile in the field—have been accumulating on a grand scale since the end of the war.

Are they being left to waste? Forgotten by authority? Deteriorating to a point where they could not be used in a sudden emergency?

To answer these questions, I have investigated the position in each of the three services.

The navy

The reserve fleet, now including four battleships, four aircraft-carriers, ten cruisers, about 60 destroyers, 123 frigates, and more than 30 submarines, has been put into "cold storage". As each ship was taken out of service, it was scrubbed out and painted throughout. Then light framework was erected over guns and delicate equipment. Over this was laid tape which, in turn, was sprayed with a plastic skin.

When the skin set, damp air was sucked out, and the whole cocoon sealed. Sometimes complete compartments of a ship were dehumidified.

Grey coats

While in reserve, ships are cared for by maintenance parties, and are regularly given fresh coats of weather-proof dark grey paint. Warships in the "immediate readiness" reserve are regularly brought back into service, and ships on the active list put into reserve.

It has been announced that the destroyers Verulam, Vigilant and Volage, which have been in reserve at Portsmouth, are now to be converted into fast anti-submarine frigates.

Thawing of the "Frozen Fleet" is planned to keep step with the mobilisation of reserves of soldiers. Unfortunately, it is estimated that while some ships could be ready for sea within a few days, others would need up to six months.

The army

Vehicles and supplies are dispersed at a number of points in the north and south.

Chosen as a representative example was the R.A.O.C. depot at Burn, near Selby, Yorkshire—a disused aerodrome. Plainly visible from the surrounding road are the three-deep lines of tanks—an estimated 2,000 of them—which have been gathering there since the end of the war.

Most of the tanks are covered by tarpaulin sheets, but one long line of about 100, by the perimeter track, is uncovered. The paint has faded and there are rust marks on some of these tanks.

Frequently tanks arrive to swell the pool and some vehicles leave—mostly burnt-out carriers. Some of these are sold publicly.

Three months

Maintenance squads and REME men are employed on the tanks. A month ago there were reports that gun barrels had been found choked with oil and fuel feed pipes cut.

Some outside engineers estimated it would take three months to make the tanks serviceable. Comment from the War Office: "It is War Office policy to retain these tanks in case they are ever required."

"There is a big shortage of indoor storage accommodation and it has been found that tanks kept better in the open than other vehicles." "Although they may look rusted on the outside, it does not follow that they are unserviceable."

The RAF

A security ban, here, on the numbers of aircraft kept at storage units in different parts of the country. But a correspondent was given special facilities to inspect one typical unit of No. 41 Group in Shropshire.

Samplers, Hornets, Mosquitoes, and Devon (the military version of the Dove) make up most of the types kept here.

An RAF wing-commander is in charge of the unit. Assisting him are nine RAF officers, mainly technical men, and a staff of 450 civilian employees.

Each aircraft is inspected every day. Every six months it has a major overhaul. And every twelve months it is taken up and test-flown by a Polish pilot.

Passing through

Some aircraft are sent to the unit straight from the factory. All aircraft pass through such a pool before going to a squadron—some arrive because they are not needed, temporarily or otherwise by their parent squadron, and some are brought for modification.

Guns are taken out of the aircraft when they arrive. Guns are bolted in grease, then pumped full of grease. In the case of piston aircraft, each cylinder is pumped full of oil; jets are treated with kerosene.

Cockpit covers have special preservative, and all air intakes and vents are covered with waterproof material and sealing tape.

The unit claims that any of these aircraft can be serviceable and flying within three days.

HOLLYWOOD WRITER GAOLED

Washington, September 27. Adrian Scott, the last of the so-called "Hollywood Ten," was ordered today to serve a year's imprisonment and pay a US$1,000 fine for contempt for refusing to tell a Congressional committee whether he is a Communist.

The others are already in jail. Scott's attorney, Martin Popper, told the court that the 40-year-old father-son Scott adopted from Britain during the war is in a very difficult state of mind and needs Scott's care.

Popper also said the case brought economic ruin to Scott's family, loss of his home and inability to obtain film work.

The so-called "Hollywood Ten" were a group of film writers, directors and producers who were cited for contempt when they defied the House of Representatives Un-American Activities Committee in October, 1947, and refused to state whether they were Communists.

Among them was Edward Dwyer, who directed the film "Give Us This Day," Associated Press.

New U.S. envoy to Britain announced

Washington, September 27. Mr. Walter Cliford was officially named today as American Ambassador to Britain.

He succeeds Mr. Lewis Douglas, who resigned yesterday for personal reasons, including those of health.

The new Ambassador is the former Chairman of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.—Reuter.

GERMAN REDS DEMONSTRATE

Duesseldorf, September 27. German police tonight charged with batons to break up a crowd demonstrating in protest against the British requisitioning of the West German Communist Party Headquarters here yesterday.

Demonstrations had been banned. The demonstrators, mostly composed of several hundred blue-shirted members of the Communist Party, marched towards the former Headquarters, chanting: "Give us back our Headquarters." German police made five arrests. They said they expected more trouble tomorrow as the Communist Party had to evacuate the building by midday.—Reuter.

Baghdad, September 27. A Foreign Office communiqué issued today said that the Iraqi and Mexican Governments had agreed to exchange diplomatic representatives.—Reuter.

AUSTRIAN REDS SEIZE LINZ LABOUR CENTRE

Vienna, September 27.

Strikers staged demonstrations all over Austria today following yesterday's cost of living riots in Vienna. Vienna itself was quieter today except for an attempt by workers in one district of the Russian sector to disrupt the tram service.

At Linz 1,000 workers marched to the Chamber of Labour, and demanded that the Government abandon its new wage-price agreement. All public transport in Linz stopped at noon.

The countrywide protests began after the Austrian Cabinet yesterday approved new scales granting wage increases which the Communists and their supporters claim are not enough to cover rising costs of food, fuel, clothing and other goods.

Communist sources said that 50,000 workers were on strike through Lower Austria in the Russian zone.

The Austrian Federal Chancellor, Dr. Leopold Figl, today received a delegation of workers who submitted a resolution of protest against the new wage price agreement sanctioned by yesterday's meeting of the Austrian Cabinet.

The Chancellor promised to bring the resolution before the Cabinet. Police reinforcements were stationed around the Federal Chancellery in Vienna.

Crowds of people bought up goods likely to go up in price when the new wage-price plan takes effect on October 1. There was a widespread black-market in commodities such as flour, semolina and sugar. Clothes and textiles rose by 25 per cent.

Illegal action

Communist demonstrators seized the Linz Chamber of Labour and established an illegal "Provisional Local Executive," the Austrian Press agency reported tonight. Linz is a large industrial city just inside the American Occupation zone.

Latest reports said the Communists still hold complete control of the building.

The Communists forced the President of the Labour Chamber and the Secretary of the local trade union headquarters to leave the building. The outflow organisation is headed by a Communist shop steward named Pool-sker, the agency reported. As the result of a threat by the group, Linz police occupied the Linz station of the Austrian broadcasting network, Red-White-Red.

It is not known here what action, if any, the police took against the Communists themselves.

The Communists had threatened to take over the Linz's transmitters and studios. In protest against news broadcasts.

Although Linz is occupied by American soldiers, there were no reports that U.S. troops had taken any action to clear the Labour Chamber building.—Reuter and Associated Press.

POLISH REPRISAL AGAINST BRITAIN

London, September 27. Poland has cancelled a contract for supplying wool to Britain.

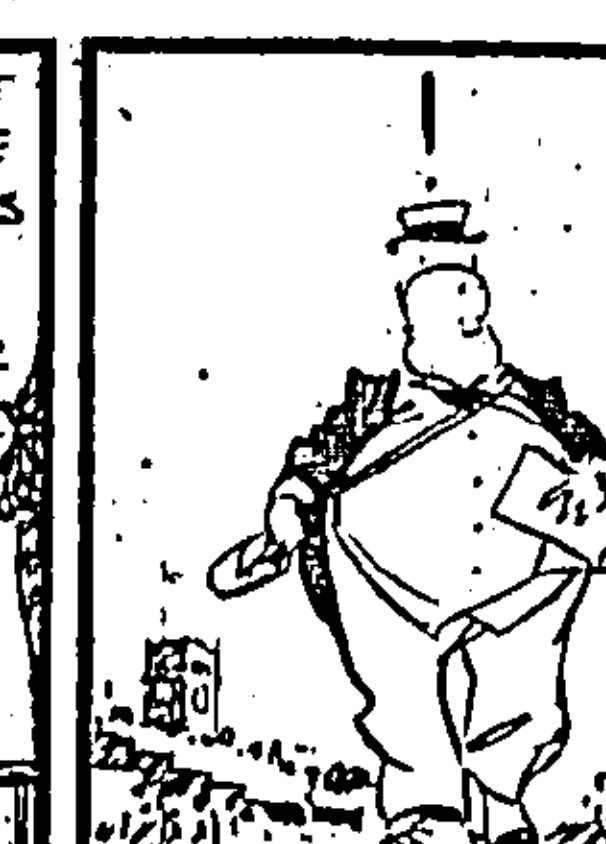

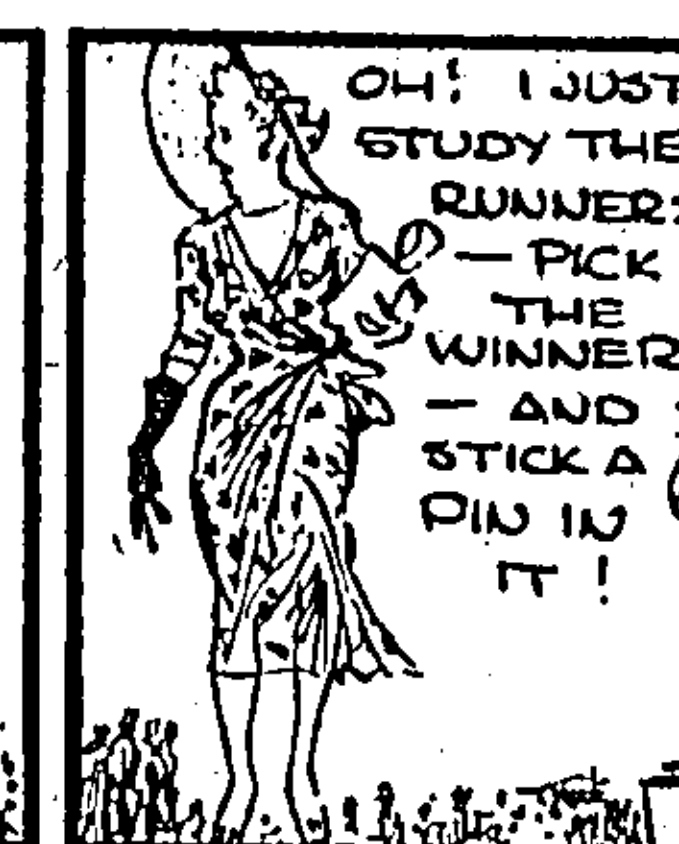

This follows Britain's decision to halt exports of certain types of machine tools to Eastern European countries.

A British newspaper company, Bowaters, has been notified that Poland is suspending the validity of a timber contract.

An official of Bowaters said that news of the suspension came through the Polish organisation with whom they made the contract.

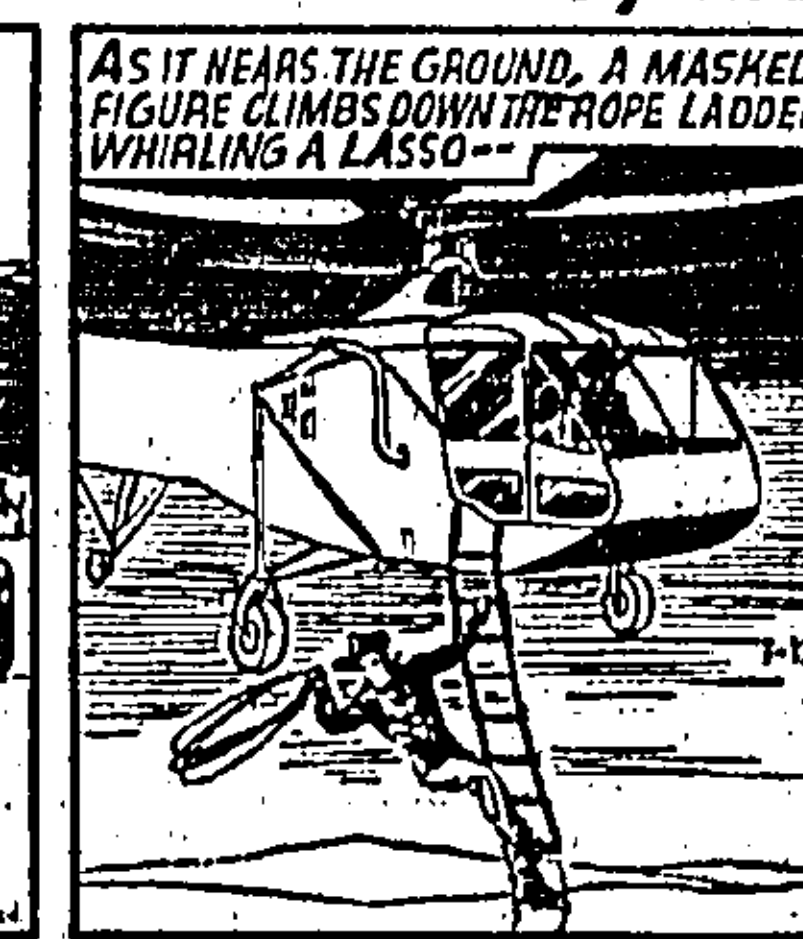

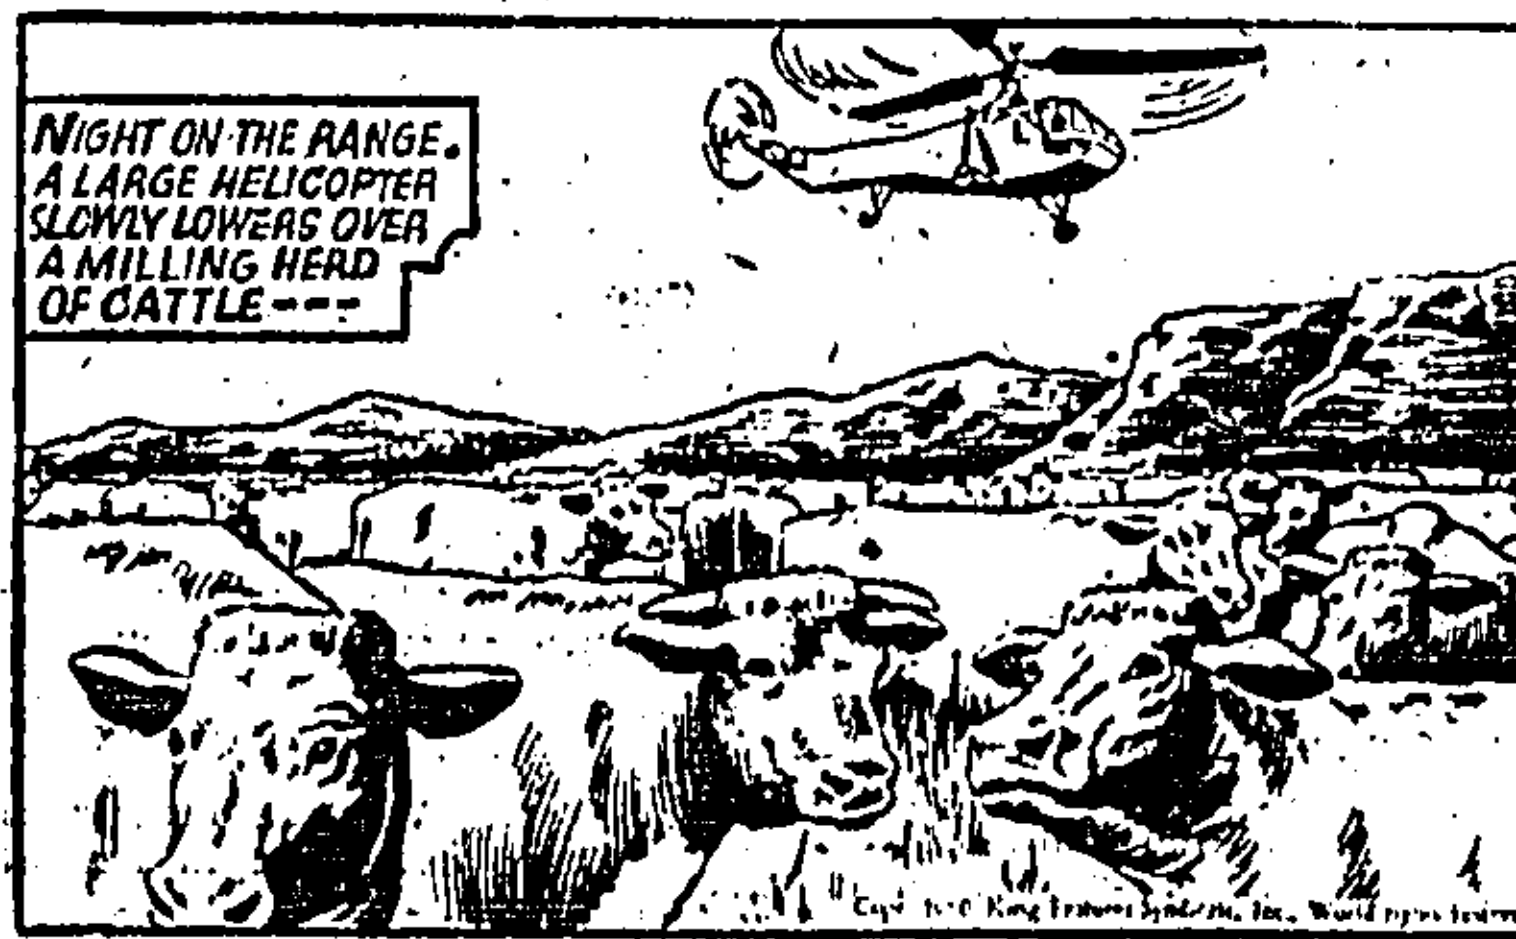

"We can only think that it is a form of reprisal," he added.—Reuter.

Wedding of Miss Kerans

The former Miss Eleanor Kerans, 24-year-old cousin of Commander Kerans of HMS Amethyst, married Richard McIntyre, a London stockbroker, ex-ADC to the Duke of Gloucester and Lord Gworne in Australia, at the Holy Trinity Church, Brompton, London. The past man was the bridegroom's twin brother, Jack, also a stockbroker. The bride is the orphan daughter of Colonel and Mrs. P. M. A. Kerans. Her only brother, David, was killed during the war. The bride wore a classic gown, with a nine-yard heavy satin train lined with crushed tulle to raise the train from the ground. The couple will honeymoon in the South of France before moving in to their Kensington home. Photo shows the bride and bridegroom at the Church after their wedding. (A.P. Photo).

Sun mystery deepens

London, September 27.

The mystery of the big blue sun deepened today when it was seen over Scandinavia, Germany and Switzerland.

Most people here thought that smoke was the cause yesterday when first the sun and the moon turned blue over Britain. But today volcanoes in Japan and cool dust from Germany were conjured up by puzzled meteorologists in Europe as possible reasons.

In Denmark, reports of the sun's colour ranged from yellow grey to azure blue. In America, where the blue sun was first seen, there was still plenty of support for the first theory.

The sun turned sapphire blue over Bari this afternoon. Traffic stopped and thousands of people stood in the streets and leaned out of windows to watch the phenomenon, which lasted for several minutes.

It was not observed elsewhere in Switzerland, where the sky was mainly overcast.

The Swiss Meteorological Office announced that one of its weather experts went on a flight from Zurich to Rome to observe the sun from a height of 20,000 feet. The expert, Dr. Wilhelm Brunner, reported by telephone that throughout the flight the sun appeared to have a slight blue tinge.

The Meteorological Office said it was probable that the phenomenon was caused by haze in the atmosphere as the result of unusually high sandstorms in some parts of the world.

U.S. theory

The sun was purple in the Eastern United States today and the moon was blue, because smoke from the forest fire in Western Canada set the sun and moon to travel on high altitude winds.

Residents of the U.S. Eastern seaboard are still seeing the same smoke that first obscured the sun four days ago with a dark and frightening pall. The Western Bureau said it was caught in a high pressure area whose winds are circling lazily in a clockwise direction from New England to Florida and back up over the Great Lakes.

Its thickness is dissipating, however, the weatherman said, and the whole cloud should pass out to sea on Southern winds within the next few days.

Ernest Christie, chief New York weatherman, said that the pall over the area today was not the Canadian smoke, which travels at 10,000 to 15,000 feet. Heavy ground fogs in the metropolitan area and the Hudson River Valley cut visibility to one mile in the area. These fogs have also trapped local smoke to add to the haze. It is the "imported" smoke, however, which is turning the sun to a purple blue in the sky and which has kept temperatures down on the ground.

The New York City temperatures would have reached 75-80 degrees if the smoke screen had not filtered the sun. The temperature recorded was 68 instead of the same condition obtained today.

The smoke layer may also have caused the fog-caught local smoke to hang hours later in the day than it would normally since it is usually the sun which warms it out of the way.

Not unusual

The Canadian fires are still sending up heavy billows of smoke in the Peace River country of British Columbia and winds in the area are reported to have shifted again to the West, blowing smoke and dust brought them over the United States. Southern winds in Central Canada, however, are expected to blow them toward the North Pole.

Mr. Christie said the smoke pall was by no means unusual, its particular heaviness this week was caused by the coincidental occurrence of widespread fires and not by unusual trans-continental winds.

Reports of black snow, were not uncommon and it was caused by similar weather conditions which blow dust, smoke and ashers up into the snow clouds.

The most unusual instance of world-travelling smoke followed the extraordinary eruption of Krakatau in the East Indies in 1883. A cloud of volcanic debris travelled around the world, passing over North and South America, reaching from Scandinavia to the Cape of Good Hope and reaching Australia after circling the globe and passing its point of origin.

Today's smoke is also, already reaching over 100 miles from its point of origin. British meteorologists reported it floating today six to eight miles above England and Scotland, turning with the sun and the moon in the sky.
